CANADIAN BONDS IN LONDON

Transactions Suspended On Stock Exchange.

UNCERTAINTY DUE TO NEW TAX PROPOSAL.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

London, Yesterday.
A surprise was to-day caused on the London Stock Exchange by all dealers in Canadian bonds suspending business in consequence of the uncertainty of the position arising from the Canadian Budget proposal for a new 5 per cent. tax on interest, which earned in Canada, is payable abroad.

A prominent dealer explained that there was no question of exerting pressure on the Canadian Government, but it was impossible at present to fix suitable prices.

The Canadian Premier, Mr. R. B. Bennett, interviewed by Trans-Atlantic telephone, expressed surprise at the development, and promised to give the matter his immediate personal attention.

It is understood that Canadian Government and Government guaranteed bonds are exempt from the new tax.

Short Story Series

Popular Features In The "China Mail."

"The Temptation of Harrington," a great short story by the popular novelist H. G. Wells will appear in to-morrow's China Mail, continuing the series of short stories which are published daily in Hong Kong's oldest and brightest newspaper.

Other features in the China Mail, the oldest-established newspaper in the Far East, include the Colony's best Sports pages, a Women's page, a cross-word puzzle and a daily cartoon. Columns on Literature, Art and Drama, Building, Engineering and Aviation, Motoring, Cinemas and Food and Home Economics, also appear during the week.

60 DEAD IN U.S. TORNADO.

DRASTIC NAZI PERSECUTION OF GERMAN JEWS

Ruthless Campaign Commenced.

JEWS EMPLOYEES TO BE DISMISSED

(Reuter's Special Service.)

Berlin, Yesterday.
Preparations for the Nazi boycott against the Jews are now complete.
Posters will be exhibited throughout the country declaring, "An international Jew must now recognise that Germany cannot be turned into a Soviet Russian Colony for criminals," and denying the stories of anti-Jewish atrocities and blaming the Jews in Germany for "the war which Jews abroad are waging against the German people."

Herr Julius Streicher, the organiser of the boycott, in a violent article in the Press, says, "The Jew wanted to fight, and the fight will continue until he recognises the German 'Brown Battalions' and not the German coward."
Meanwhile the Nazi headquarters gave the screw another turn by ordering non-Jewish employees in Jewish firms to demand two months' wages in advance, and to stage demonstrations outside their own employers' premises.

Gentile employers are ordered to dismiss Jewish employees immediately, while Jewish masters are forbidden to dismiss non-Jewish workers.

The Nazi Headquarters are appointing Chiefs of Staffs to "take measures" against recalcitrant Jewish employers.

Recalling the medieval persecution, the Nazis have ordered black placards with yellow spots to be posted outside all Jewish shops.

Altona Reaction.

The Police President here has ordered an addition of the words "Jewish Business" in the case of all German concerns.

BOYCOTT STARTED

Nazi Pickets Outside Jewish Shops.

Berlin, Later.
The Nazi boycott was enforced at 10 a.m. to-day. Most of the Jewish shops have already closed, and the remainder will soon put up their shutters, for it is obviously impossible for them to expect customers.

The beginning of the boycott was the signal for uniformed Nazi pickets to take up positions outside all Jewish establishments, whether open or closed.

Their presence, which is reinforced by posters calling on the people to defend themselves and to refuse to buy from the Jews, is sufficient to intimidate any would-be shoppers.—Reuter.

Suspension To Avoid Trouble.

LEADERS MAY BE UNABLE TO CHECK BOYCOTT.

Berlin, Yesterday.
The suspension of the boycott is regarded by disinterested parties here as a recognition of the undesirable economic dislocation which would follow, and this viewpoint was urged by Nazi members of the Cabinet.

Pan-American Airways Acquire More Stock in C.N.A.C.

New York, Yesterday.
The Pan-American Airways Company to-day announces the acquisition of 45 per cent. of the capital stock of the China National Aviation Corporation.
The China National Aviation Corporation is a Sino-American controlled concern, operating airlines between Shanghai and the principal cities in North China, particularly those on the Yangtze River.—Reuter.

ARMED GUARDS PLACED ON NEWCHANG SHIPS.

Tokio, To-day.

A message from Newchwang states that as all attempts to locate the kidnappers of the officers of the s.s. Nanchang have failed the local authorities anticipate that nothing will be heard until a ransom is demanded.

A Japanese destroyer has arrived at Newchwang from Port Arthur and is co-operating with H.M.S. "Comflower."

Warships Collide At Shanghai.

U.S.S. HOUSTON'S MISHAP.

Shanghai, Yesterday.

The French gunboat "Francis Garnier" was badly holed amidships as the result of a collision with the Bund at Shanghai this afternoon, with the United States Asiatic Squadron Flagship, "Houston" which had just arrived from Manila, with Admiral Taylor aboard.

The mishap took place near Garden Bridge. Tug boats hurried to the scene and assisted the "Francis Garnier" which was shipping water fast.

Temporary repairs were quickly effected. No casualties resulted from the mishap on either ship.

The U.S.S. "Houston" was only slightly damaged.—Reuter.

In An Atmosphere Of Mediaeval Splendour Pope Opens Holy Year

Vatican City, Yesterday.

The solemn opening of the Holy Year, commemorating the Crusades, was to-day carried out by His Holiness the Pope in an atmosphere of mediaeval splendour, surrounded by Cardinals, Prelates, Ambassadors and Ministers accredited to his Court.

Striking three times with a golden hammer on the Holy Door of Saint Peter's, the Pope, attired in a gorgeous mantle of white silk and gold, demanded admission to the Church, while the bells of

CHINESE CLAIM VICTORY

Peiping, Yesterday.

According to Chinese reports, 2,000 Japanese troops yesterday suddenly advanced on the Chinese lines from Chiumenkow, one column attacking Hsiangshui, and another attacking Shihshuai.

Japanese planes assisted their attack which the Chinese met from two hills near Shihmenchai.

Fighting continued until the afternoon, when Chinese reports claimed that the Japanese had retired.—Reuter.

JAPAN DENIES GERMAN CLAIM TO MANDATES

Hitler Hopes To Regain Pacific Islands.

SPOILS OF WAR?

Tokyo.

Following reports that Chancellor Adolf Hitler hopes to regain former German colonies through the League of Nations, including the islands in the Pacific mandated to Japan, the navy have begun circulating a pamphlet refuting any German claim to them.

It was pointed out that Japan occupied the islands on the outbreak of the war, simultaneously concluding an agreement with Britain that the islands should be assigned to Japan as spoils when the war was finished.

Thereafter a general allied agreement was reached regarding the disposition of the German colonies.

The pamphlet recalled that President Woodrow Wilson of the United States was opposed to annexation by the allies of the former German colonies, and as a result Britain, Japan and France agreed to the system of mandates, but with the understanding that this meant annexation.

The paper reiterated that the mandated islands, including the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas, were "Japan's naval lifeline."

Expect League to Take Action.
A hint that Germany retains a vague hope of some day recovering the mid-Pacific islands lost during the World war and now held by Japan was given in a statement inspired by the government.

Germany expects the League of Nations to take action upon Japan's claim to the former German colonies, now held under a (Continued on Page 16.)

White Paper Disliked

Proposals Must Be Amended.

DISAPPROVAL MOTION IN NEW DELHI.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

New Delhi, Yesterday.

The Legislative Council to-day adopted a motion for the disapproval of the Imperial Government's present White Paper proposals for a new Indian constitution.

The motion, submitted by Sir Abdur Rahim, K.C.S.I., former member of the Executive Council of the Government of Bengal, and late Judge of the High Court of Madras, stated that unless the proposals were substantially amended in the direction of giving greater freedom of action to the people's representatives, it would be impossible to ensure peace and progress for the country.

Banned Meeting Of Congress.

MEMBERS' PROTEST LEADS TO 15 ARRESTS.

Calcutta, Yesterday.

The series of arrests of Nationalists, made recently to prevent the banned meeting of the Indian Congress, has not deterred the Congress members, who to-day assembled in the tramways shed and squatted, refusing to move even when the police arrived.

They were, however, finally dispersed, 150 being arrested, including Mrs. Nellie Sengupta, the English wife of the Bengal Congress Leader and 40 other women.

Copies of the Congress resolutions, which were taken as read, were distributed among the crowd both inside and outside the shed.—Reuter.

DANGEROUS DRUGS.

Britain To Limit Manufacture.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

London, Yesterday.

The British Government to-day ratified the Drugs Limitation Convention, 1931, the purpose of which is to limit the manufacture of dangerous drugs to an estimated figure for medical and scientific needs.

This now makes 14 ratifications, whereas, 25 are necessary to enforce the Convention.

THE BOAT RACE RESULT

Cambridge Win By 2 1/4 Lengths.

OXFORD'S 10TH CONSECUTIVE DEFEAT.

Cambridge won the annual 'Varsity boat race yesterday by 2 1/4 lengths.

After Oxford had led at the start, Cambridge took the lead and gradually increased it until the finish. Oxford made a gallant fight all the way and the race was always thrilling.

This marks the tenth successive victory for the Light Blues.

The annual dinner of the local Oxford and Cambridge Society was held last night at the Gloucester Building.

The result of the boat race was received with great enthusiasm, particularly by the Cambridge members.

BRITISH PILOT'S DEATH

Machine Stalls And Goes Into Spin.

FATAL CRASH AT LIUCHOW.

The machine flown by Mr. R. J. Stevens, of the Far Eastern Aviation Company, when he crashed at Liuchow on Thursday, stalled when he was about to land and then went into a spin.

A Chinese passenger, probably a member of the 4th Group Army Corps, was the only other person in the aeroplane and he was severely injured.

The aircraft was an Avro, Type 626, of the latest of two-seater fighters. It was the third machine of that class to be delivered to the 4th Group Army Corps and was flown to Kwangsi by Mr. G. S. Jones Evans, on March 12, after it had undergone tests in Hong Kong.

When interviewed yesterday Mr. A. V. Harvey, local manager of the Company, said that he intended to leave for the scene at the earliest opportunity, but at present bad weather conditions were delaying him.

The flight will take approximately 7 hours. Mr. Harvey will fly an Avro Cadet.

It is intended to hold an official enquiry at the Liuchow aerodrome.

HAMMOND UNDEFEATED WITH 336

Breaks Bradman's World Record Of 334.

10 SIXES AND 33 BOUNDARIES.

New Zealand 382 In Arrears.

Auckland, Yesterday.

Hitting ten sixes and thirty-three boundaries "Wally" Hammond, the Gloucestershire all-rounder, shattered the world's record for an individual Test innings by scoring 336 not out in England's first innings against New Zealand. He was at the wickets for 318 minutes, and scored his runs out of 502.

Hammond's brilliant batting allowed Bob Wyatt to declare the England innings at 648 for 7, and at the close of play New Zealand, with all their wickets in hand, required 382 to save the innings defeat.

Hammond and Paynter added only half a dozen runs after lunch when the Lancashire player was completely decelerated by a ball from Dunning. 288-3-36.

The pair had added 149 for the third wicket, of which Paynter had scored 80.

Ames helped to add 59 for the fourth wicket before falling to the wiles of Badcock, a former English county player. 347-4-26. Joined by Allen, Hammond used the long handle in a glorious manner and the pair had added 60 for the fifth wicket before the Middlesex all-rounder was clean bowled for 12.

Brown made a contribution of 13 to the sixth wicket partnership of 49, and Voce claimed sixteen of the 44 runs added for the seventh wicket.

Hammond reached his third century just before the tea interval. He had completely demolished the bowlers, hitting ten sixes and thirty boundaries in collecting 302.

Duckworth was one and the score 506 for 7 when tea was taken.

Wyatt delayed the declaration of the innings in order to give Hammond the opportunity of breaking Don Bradman's Test record of 334, scored against England at Leeds in 1930, and the Gloucestershire batsman fulfilled all expectations.

U.S. SUPPLY OF "ENERGY" GROWING

One Man Does Work Of Several.

INSTITUTION STATISTICS

New York. There should be an "energy supply" of 94,000,000 thermal units for every person in the United States by 1950. Two years ago the amount was estimated at 73,000,000 units per individual.

This prediction was made to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers by a professor of mining at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The "energy" is the actual power used in this country from coal, petroleum, gas and water-power. Each "unit" is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit, from 60 to 61 degrees. That is, if the "energy" were divided equally, every person would now have enough heat at his disposal to warm up 73,000,000 pounds of water one degree.

The rise of petroleum and decline of coal in this increased energy production was predicted.

As a result of the energy increase in the last three decades, the report estimates that one man does the work that "only a few years ago required two, three or even greater numbers." The favourable economic effects are well known; namely increased production, higher wages and lower costs.

On the other hand, the vast social effects, both good and bad, have been none the less important, even if less understood and only casually regarded.—Reuter.

DANGER OF "OPEN DIPLOMACY"

Weaknesses Shown In Kellogg Pact.

LACK OF PRECISION

Athens, Georgia. Uncertainty, publicity, emotional appeals and substitution of conferences for regular diplomatic channels are listed as the "four weaknesses" of modern diplomacy by Mr. Harold Nicolson, the former British Minister to Persia and well-known writer.

Mr. Nicolson, speaking at the University of Georgia, said that modern diplomacy suffers from dangers of its own creation.

He used the Kellogg Pact as his leading illustration.

"While some people," he said, "feel that the Kellogg Pact represents a definite international agreement, others feel it is simply an admirable sentiment, a valid expression of good will. This difference of opinion, in itself, proves that the pact, because of its lack of precision, carries on exact obligation on the part of its signatories."

"Good diplomacy is precise diplomacy. To the extent that diplomacy now rests on an uncertain democratic background which compels its accords to become vague, it is less effective as an international agency than the old diplomacy."—Reuter.

White Popular Yellow Also Coming Into Favour

WHITE is becoming increasingly important in evening dress, especially in the new moires printed with striking designs in satin. Net shoulder capes, their sheerness broken by a scattering of flower petals, either of crepe satin or thin velvet in bright colours often accompany them.

Yellow is making headway as a high style note for evening, and is especially attractive in the new blistered or mottled satins. Weaves of satin are as interesting as those of velvet.

Contrasting tailored belts on evening gowns are high style notes. Bands of thin tan kid belt dresses of black chiffon, and it is very much in the fashion picture to have a tailored belt of velvet ribbon or of metalized kid on a tulle gown.

Velvet is perhaps the most important fabric for evening dress, that is, it is seen in the greatest quantities. In many instances, it is smartly combined with lace, with its tulle, which is long and slightly fitted from under the arms to the hips, and then flares. There is no belt and no sign of a waistline except as indicated by a slight curve. Brown lace is the medium of the dress and the cape wrap is of shirred velvet, that is, a velvet shirred in the manufacture, not by the dressmaker.

Watermarked velvets that look like moire also have a stanch position in style. A dress seen recently was of soft dull green trimmed with brown fur-dyed kolinsky, to be exact. In cut the dress was decidedly of Moyen Age inspiration with a figure-moulding bodice that gave a very long-waisted effect. It was attached, low on the hips, to a skirt which became more and more rippling as it reached a fur-bordered hem.

The jeweled or sequin belt also is in high favour. Here a smart combination of colours is seen, magenta and fuchsia the top of the bodice being of fuchsia coloured sequins, as are the shoulder straps and the belt, while one layer of tulle in magenta colour overlays another of fuchsia shade in the skirt. The slip of the flower colour gives depth and colour to the gown. In this model the importance of the capelet again is seen.

Evening Wraps.
Wraps for the evening are varied from capelets to full-length coats, those at the front; in locknit, at wide scarf drapery, comes in the right angles to them.

Woollen Materials For Comfort

All-Wool Ensembles
For Spring.

THE advent of woollen materials into the afternoon mode has brought with it comfort, and has yet not taken away any of the chic which is so necessary to the successful afternoon toilet.

THESE all-wool ensembles are going just as strong for Spring as they did in Winter and they will come in very smartly for lots of afternoon occasions in the South, many of them being designed especially for that purpose.

ARTIFICIAL SILK

THE novice, buying artificial silk, is often perplexed to know whether it is "stockinette" or "locknit," two entirely different fabrics. These are, however, readily distinguished.

In stockinette the "lines" at the back run in the same direction as those at the front; in locknit, at right angles to them.

SEPARATE wool frocks will appear as the days grow warmer.

Lyolene's white wool coat-dress with a ruffled jabot-plastron of white organdie, filling in the open-faced neck, is a great favourite with the younger elegantes.

BOTH long coat and frock are apt to be very straight and plain, with high, round, collarless neckline and simple sleeves mounted on various versions of the drop-shoulder yoke, widening, without exaggerating, the upper silhouette.

SOMETIMES the coat and frock are in the same soft, hairy woollen; at others, they match in colour, but the frock is of a lighter-weight material; and again, they are in the same wool, but in contrasting tones. The latter are of course the most useful, for they also wearable in town.

Hints On Washing Crepe Suede

BLOUSES and frocks of crepe-suede need careful washing and ironing to prevent them from acquiring a greasy and mottled appearance.

They should first be soaked for a while in cold water, then washed in lukewarm water with soap flakes or boiled soap, rinsed well, and allowed to dry thoroughly before ironing.

They must be ironed on the wrong side, and if any final pressing on the right side is necessary a thin dry cloth should be laid over the material.

Modesty Vests

ORIGINAL modesty vests may be quickly and inexpensively made from six ten-inch lengths of one and a half inch insertion, one length of lace and artificial silk. Cut five strips of silk ten by one and a half inches and press down a quarter-inch turning.

Join the strips of insertion with the strips of silk, placing the latter over the edges of the insertion, and machining it with a fairly loose tension. The insertion will now be at the top and bottom of the vest. Sew the lace to the top and hem the sides.

April 2nd, 1933.

The generous response of Hong Kong and Kowloon to our underwear sale, has encouraged us to continue it for another week. A lot of even more wonderful garments have been added to sustain interest; all the same extraordinary low prices.

We feel we have made many friends among the customers who have responded to our advertising, and we are grateful. We hope to continue giving just such values in all lines we carry, so that when The Jade Tree advertises a sale, people will know it is a real sale that will pay them to attend, even though they come from a distance.

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Wong

LADIES!

With the approaching of years, you should give more and particular attention to the three most valuable assets of your beauty: — your EYES, CHIN and NECK. While you are radiantly lovely, the menace of the years passes by unnoticed; but that is the correct time to prepare against the ravages of increasing age. — that sagging of the muscles, dulling of the eyes and wrinkling which ruin a woman's glory.

NOW is the TIME to consult a BEAUTY SPECIALIST of note, Mademoiselle Tamara of "LOUIS" SALOON will be pleased to explain to you how and in what way you can overcome the difficulties of retaining your beauty by simple and natural principles.

Expert advice and a method of complete safety in accord with your skin. Unobtainable Elsewhere, will be given gratuitously to you by Mademoiselle Tamara.

BIGGEST DIVIDEND OF THE YEAR

Mr. Frost Wins On Flying Boy

SAMSON STABLE'S SUCCESS

THE THIRD EXTRA RACE MEETING PROVIDES UPSETS.

A NEW RECORD DIVIDEND FOR THE YEAR WAS ESTABLISHED YESTERDAY WHEN MR. F. M. L. SOARES RODE NAVY HALL TO VICTORY IN THE HONGKONG BAY HANDICAP TO PAY $185.20 FOR A WIN. TILICUM, WHICH PAID $109 FOR A WIN DURING THE ANNUAL MEETING, WAS A COMPETITOR IN THE SAME RACE.

Dividends reached substantial figures in almost every race. Mr. Frost, on Flying Boy, paying out the only other three-figure dividend—$111.10 for a win.

Mr. "Leo" Frost was again the leading jockey, securing two wins and two seconds against Mr. S. N. Pan's two wins and a second. The Samson stable was the most successful, recording two wins and a third with five entries.

In a day of thrilling racing which led to a complete upset of form, there was only one spill. In the last race, which resulted in two dead heats, Cebu appeared to stumble at the mile post and Mr. H. V. Pearce sustained minor facial injuries as the result of his fall. He was, however, not seriously hurt.

THE seven starters in the Canterbury Park Handicap got away together and were well bunched until nearing the Rock where Wotin was seen to draw away with Night Star and Portia in close attendance. Woodland Stag was lying well in the rear. Coming into the straight Mr. Pan occupied a good position on the rails, and the champion was moving beautifully. Mr. Frost brought Woodland Stag up on the outside from nowhere, and just managed to catch Portia before passing the post 2½ lengths behind Night Star.

It was a good finish, but it was quite evident that Woodland Stag is now a pony of the past that not even the champion jockey could push past the first when competing against the new champion Australian.

Night Star paid handsomely for a certain win, backers receiving $9.40.

Marquis Hall set the pace in the Mira Bay Handicap. The pony ran well and Mr. "Bill" Stanton held his lead to the mile post, but at this point it was obvious that 162 lbs. was beginning to make itself felt, and the pony fell back, giving place

GOLF INFLUENCE.

We are soured on the big things in America. There is no aspect of golf which has been changed through American influence that has not been detrimental to the game. Every change has had the effect of emasculating the spirit of adventure—both law and implements.—Anthony Spalding.

HAMMOND UNDEFEATED WITH 336.

He hit out with fresh vigour and scored 34 of the 42 runs scored after tea. When Hammond had been given a great ovation by the crowd, many of whom remembered his 227 in the first Test at Christchurch.

Wynnt declared the innings, setting New Zealand the tasking of scoring 390 to save the innings defeat.

One of the features of the innings was the wicket-keeping of K. C. James. Though not dismissing any batsman he conceded only 19 extras in a total of 648.

CARNERA WILL MEET SHARKEY FOR WORLD TITLE

Big Fight Fixed For June

London, March 7. It seems quite possible that Carnera may yet fight for the world's heavy-weight championship, which is held by Jack Sharkey, the Bostonian. The Italian, who has sailed from New York, stated in a telephone message from the liner that he had signed a contract to meet Sharkey at Madison Square Garden in June. He expects to return in a few weeks to America.

The Garden authorities have just extended their contract on Sharkey's services from June to September, which suggests that his match with Carnera will come off after all. The champion met Carnera in New York 16 months ago and won on points.

Argylls Win 5-3 in Shanghai.

Shanghai, March 28. Boxers of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders scored a victory over H.M.S. Berwick at the Union Jack Club last night by five wins to their opponents' three. Three knock-outs featured an evening of dull and slow scrapping.

The following were the results: Pte. Fernie beat Pte. Ryan. L/Cpl. Gallacher beat Seaman Meek. Seaman Keen won k.o. over Pte. Crossman. A. B. Richards beat Pte. Falconer. Tel. Johnson beat Pte. McNaughton. L/Sgt. Hay beat Tel. King. Pte. McGowan won k.o. A. B. Seymour. Pte. Ritchie won k.o. over A. B. Worthington.

RECREIO HELD BY THE "Y" LADIES

Last League Encounter A Goalless Draw.

S. DALZIEL'S BRILLIANCE.

THE Club de Recreio Ladies, new holders of the Southern Runners-Up Cup in the Caer Clark Cup Hockey League were forced to a goalless draw yesterday, when they met the "Y" Ladies on the latter's ground, in the final game of the season.

The result was a fitting climax to an excellent game in which the "Y" displayed a marked improvement in all departments of the game.

The "Y" ladies much to the surprise of their opponents, were on the aggressive for the majority of the game and towards the end they were unlucky in not finding the net on several occasions.

FINAL LADIES' TRIAL

The final trial before the selection of the team to represent the Rest against the Hong Kong Ladies, winners of the Caer Clark Cup next Saturday, will take place this morning on the C.B.A. ground at 10 a.m.

The Club de Recreio failed to find their true form until the very last minutes of the game, when they pierced the "Y" defence, but failed to score after A. Alves had cut through on her own to hit the left upright.

The outstanding player was S. Dalziel who played brilliantly at centre forward for the "Y". She was the most dangerous forward on the field. E. Xavier gave a good display at right half for the Recreio and her display should greatly enhance her claims for inclusion in the Rest's side to meet the Champions next week.

C. Osmund and M. Basto played well in the Recreio defence being primarily responsible for the "Y" failing to score.

Messrs. C. C. Francis and F. W. Allen refereed and lined up the following teams:—"Y": Mrs. Owen; Miss Jones and A. Fowler; P. McCaw, M. Groundwater and M. Gardiner; R. Blackmore, S. Dalziel, M. Mason and O. Brown.

Recreio:—B. Almada; M. Basto and C. Osmund; E. Xavier, M. Alves, and H. Gutierrez; B. Remedios, O. Ribeiro, C. Silva, A. Alves and M. Remedios.

SAINTS HOLD CHAMPIONS.

A friendly hockey game between the Hong Kong Ladies, holders of the Caer Clark Cup, and the St. Andrew's Ladies, resulted in a drawn game of one goal-all at Sookunpo.

M. Woolley opened the scoring in the first half, but the champions equalised soon after through P. M. Harrop, who netted from a difficult angle.

Y.M.C.A. "A" LOSE.

Playing at King's Park yesterday, the Dragons ("B" Coy, S.W.B.) beat the Y.M.C.A. "A" team by 2 goals to 1 in a fast hockey game.

The Dragons were constantly on the attack and scored first through Pte. George, but G. Fowler equalised shortly after. In the second half the Dragons took the lead through George again, who netted after a fine solo effort.

BOWLERS GAIN UPPER HAND IN JUNIOR GAMES

THE Police Recreation completed their League Cricket fixtures yesterday when a fourth wicket partnership between A. E. Carey and R. Wynne realised 63 runs to give them victory over the Service Corps by 7 wickets. They have concluded the season in identical manner to the Indian R.C., last year's champions.

Good batting by I. McInnes, coupled with considerable support from the "tail" and many fielding errors was responsible for the K.C.C. total of 185 against the Club. The visitors, however, will commence play to-day only 120 runs in arrears with nine wickets in hand.

Bowlers gained the upper hand in junior games, J. F. McGowan (6 for 18), C. B. R. Sargent (6 for 23) and Lt. Marsham (6 for 40) being the best performers. Marsham followed up his bowling performance by reaching the half century in a three-figure second wicket partnership with E. R. A. Sparrow against the Craigenower juniors.

AMERICA REJECTS THE DOLE

No Demand For State Insurance

Optimistic View Of Depression By Unemployed

SYSTEM OF RESERVES

(By Martin Moore.)

San Francisco. In a country where there are anything from 11,000,000 to 14,000,000 workless, you might expect to find a pressing demand for State unemployment insurance. But in point of fact such a demand scarcely exists among the unemployed themselves.

It is true that there is a certain political pressure for State insurance; and I have heard the same conviction voiced by sociologists and economists who view the unemployment situation from above. But the men naturally without jobs seem to take little interest in such proposals. They grasp at charity; they eagerly enrol for relief work; they often beg from passers-by in the street; but they do not ask for a permanent "dole" system.

Back To Prosperity. In the course of many conversations with unemployed men I have met only one who said he would like to see the British system of unemployment insurance adopted here. He had heard of our "dole," but he expressed considerable surprise when he learned that workers themselves contributed to the fund and were obliged to suffer a weekly deduction from their pay envelopes.

The truth is that the average American unemployed man does not regard his present plight as likely to last long or ever to descend upon him again. The depression seems to him an unprecedented and isolated disaster, like an earthquake. For the moment he wants all the relief he can get, but to insure against a recurrence of the catastrophe does not strike him as a business proposition. The risk is too remote.

Those who stand a little apart from the depression and view its effects less personally are not always so optimistic as the men actually out of work. They believe that no conceivable "upswing" can ever bring the nation back to the prosperous level of yesterday, and that some legislative provision must be made for relieving a permanent or recurrent balance of unemployed.

California System. The Governor of California appointed a State Unemployment Commission, under the chairmanship of Archbishop Hanna, to examine this problem. The legislation they have recommended is worth describing, if only because they studied the British system, and claim to have avoided its drawbacks. The Commission have rejected the idea of State unemployment insurance. What they recommend instead is a system of "unemployment reserves," built up jointly by employed, and administered by a State Department. The State, however, would make no financial contribution to the fund.

Under this system each factory or business will create its own separate reserve. Each week or month a sum amounting to two per cent. of the total pay-roll will be set aside for the unemployment reserve. When the fund reaches a sum total equal to $50 per employee, deduction from the pay-roll is automatically reduced to one per cent. Finally, when $75 per employee has been set aside, contributions cease entirely, and need never be renewed until unemployment in that factory begins to deplete the reserve.

In addition to the $2 per $100 on the pay-roll paid into this unemployment pool, a further 20c will be deducted for administrative expenses. Thus $2.20 will go to the pool out of every $100 disbursed in wages. Of this the employer will contribute $1.50 and the employee 70c.

Ten Weeks' Benefit. When a worker loses his employment he receives out of this fund $10 a week, or 50 per cent. of his average wage, which ever is lower. But he is not eligible for more than ten weeks' benefit in any one year, nor can he draw on any other fund but that built up by his own factory or place of employment.

"We admit that this plan is inadequate to meet a prolonged period of general unemployment," said a member of the Commission with whom I discussed the scheme. "But we believe that it will provide a large measure of security for employees, while placing the minimum liability upon the employer, and none at all upon the public funds."

Had such a scheme been in operation in California during the prosperity years between 1923 and 1929, it is calculated that the unemployment reserves would have reached $93,000,000 by the time the depression set in.

Practically every firm would have attained the limit of $75 per employee; contributions would have ceased; and both workers and employers would long since have forgotten the very existence of such a fund. But the $93,000,000 would have been there to meet hard times when they came.

The flaw in this scheme, as those who devised it themselves allow, is its inadequacy in face of a prolonged slump. The present depression would long ago have exhausted even a fully paid-up pool. But Americans do not expect another slump like this, though some of them believe that a certain amount of unemployment will henceforth become normal.

In that event, it is claimed, the "American plan" would make private charity and public relief work alike unnecessary. It would make no demands upon the taxpayer, and it would preserve the traditional American independence in business; for the employer who kept his plant at work would not be responsible for the discharged employees of other firms.

Deliciously Crisp CRUNCHY CREAM CRACKERS

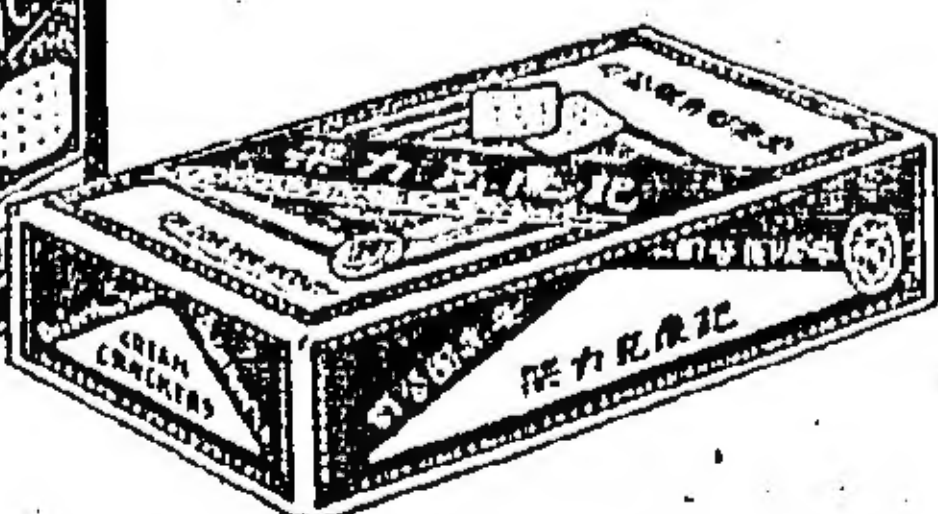

HERE are tasty, flaky biscuits made with the same machinery and by the same modern hygienic methods as the big biscuit makers of England and America employ.

Cream Crackers made with high grade flour, butter and milk; untouched by hand; delightfully crisp and baked to a golden brown by expert workmen in Hong Kong's largest biscuit factory.

Ask at On Lok Yuen's main store, or their branches, or at any good class provision dealer's for a FREE SAMPLE. Test their rich creamy flavour free, and then buy in airtight 1 1/2 lb. tins, $1.00 (Loose 60 cents per lb.)

SODA CRACKERS. TOO!

MADE on the same hygienic lines and just as pure and dependable — On Lok Yuen's Soda Crackers: 80 cents 1 1/2 lb. tin, $1.60 2 1/2 lb. tin or 32 cents per lb. loose.

BRIDGE NOTES

When It Pays Not To Play For Game.

At one table the other day East considered his partner more than a little ungrateful when, after he had set the adversaries 420 points on Two Hearts doubled and redoubled, West remarked:

"We should have gone game if you bid two No Trumps instead of doubling."

East answered:
"Isn't 420 points good enough? It seems to me at least equal to a rubber, and won on a single hand at that."

This was at Auction, but the same point occurs with added force in Contract. Despite the value of game-in-hand, it does pay sometimes to defeat the adversaries rather than play the hand yourself with a certain prospect of game.

The following is an example of a double preferred to game—with happy results.

North dealt and bid "Three Hearts"; West and South passed. It is a love score, and East holds:

SPADES: A K
HEARTS: A J 10 9
DIAMONDS: K Q J x
CLUBS: A K x

Apparently North has bid "Three Hearts" on seven or eight to the King-Queen. He may have the Ace of Diamonds, but that is by no means certain. On a normal distribution of cards, East can double not only the Hearts, but any other bid North makes. He makes two tricks in Hearts, and has nothing to fear in any suit. North should lose heavily, unless he has nine Hearts in his own hand, is chicaning in Clubs, has the Ace of Diamonds, and three Spades to the Queen. This is so utterly unlikely that East doubled.

North was four light, and remarked, "I should have bid No Trumps with your hand."

Playing For Penalties.
For some players there is no such event as an obligatory informative double. If they think that leaving the double in is likely to pay, they do so.

For example, East bids "One No Trump." South doubles. West passes, and North holds:

SPADES: Q x x x x
HEARTS: A
DIAMONDS: J 10 x x
CLUBS: A J x

If South's hand warrants an informative double, the combined hands should be good enough to defeat any original bid of "One No Trump." If North can rely on his partner, the implication is that East is a victim of the light No Trump complex, and he should pay the penalty.

"When the adverse bid suits you, say nothing," is a sound maxim.

If the player on the right deals and opens with "One No Trump," the temptation to bid Clubs on this hand is enormous:

SPADES: x x
HEARTS: x
DIAMONDS: x x x x
CLUBS: A K Q J x x

A bid on the part of a player sitting in the lead with such a hand, however, would be folly. His very best hope is that the hand is played in No Trumps. He then reels off six tricks, by which time he will probably have discovered what to lead to his partner. A Club bid can only have the effect of driving the adversaries out of No Trumps.

Redoubles.

When a player decides to prefer a double to a further bid for game, that is usually the sign of evenly matched hands. The question of the redouble arises.

Many redoubles are simply bad temper. . . . nobody will deny that. A player who gets the wrong side of a redouble, however, may be forgiven for disliking his bridge. This gives the "poker" bridge player opportunity to escape against weaker players by bluff redoubles. A player bidding to force another player up finds himself doubled. He redoubles, realising that the other will possibly prefer to play the hand rather than risk losing on the redouble.

Two sound hints are:

NEVER, when playing in company of equal calibre, redouble.

ALWAYS stick to your double if redoubled. The chances are that the redouble is bad temper or bluff. In any case, if your double was sound you can take the risk.

America, Japan And The League.

JAPAN'S WITHDRAWAL from the League has presented a great opportunity to the United States to make a valuable contribution to the movement towards international co-operation and world peace. By becoming a member of the League of Nations, America, at a single stroke, would repair the damage caused by Japan's defiance. The League's position would be strengthened enormously and, with prestige recovered, the League would be better equipped to fulfil its functions. A crisis has been reached at Geneva and nothing but the full support of the United States can save the League from being reduced to a state of utter ineptitude. It has been shown impotent to cope with any outbreak as serious as the Manchurian affair and even the partly successful efforts at "saving face" have deceived no-one. America's present attitude to the League is peculiar and confusing. Remaining aloof from the League whenever possible, Washington sends an unofficial delegate in the person of Mr. Norman Davis to Geneva when the matter under discussion is one in which America is vitally interested. That delegate is given no official status at Geneva but is merely an envoy who is not empowered to vote or commit his country to any decision. If America, as she inevitably must, is to co-operate with the League it would be infinitely better that she did so as a member, as no wholehearted participation is possible under the present method. Mr. Woodrow Wilson was the first President of the United States to play a large part in international affairs, yet, although he was mainly instrumental in forming the League of Nations, he declined to subscribe to his country's membership. Since then the American public, chiefly through the Hearst Press, has been instilled with the belief that America must keep out of European affairs. The sudden termination of the prosperity era forced America to the realization that a policy of isolation was impracticable, particularly in economic spheres, and soon President Hoover found himself immersed in world problems such as war debts, reparations, tariffs, disarmament and the Far East dispute. In deference to public opinion, Mr. Hoover remained aloof as far as possible, this policy adding to the handicaps which delayed progress in international negotiations. His successor at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt, has indicated that he appreciates the necessity for wide international co-operation to solve the world's difficulties, but has shown a cautious reserve on the subject of the League of Nations. Unfortunately, he is at present so engrossed with the many domestic troubles confronting him that the time is inopportune for renewing the invitation to America to join the League.

Japan's withdrawal caused little sensation as it had been regarded as inevitable, following the adoption of the Committee of Nineteen's report on Manchuria, but already the effects are apparent. The withdrawal makes little difference to the Far East situation, and actually, Japan's defiance of the League will seem less blatant now that she is a non-member. The consequences of the withdrawal, as Tokyo probably foresaw, are felt more acutely in Europe. Already a discordant note has been struck over the competition that has arisen for the vacant seat on the Council. The Little Entente, with the support of France, is anxious for the coveted place, but the claim has aroused hostility in Italy and Germany. Further complications arise over the question of mandates and Germany is pressing for the return of part of her former colonies. The problem of Manchukuo still remains and the withholding of recognition of the puppet State will not prevent Japan from proceeding with her plans in Manchuria. The League in its present sorry plight is incapable of settling any of these problems, but America, in her own interests may be forced to assist the League to survive. If the United States joined the League, a strong stand could be taken on the mandates question, while the dispute over the Council vacancy would be instantly settled by the allocation of the seat to the new member. There is only one course open to the United States if the Japanese strategy is to be defeated.

PRIMITIVE MAMMALS FOR CHICAGO

Cave-Dwelling Families
For World Fair.

NATURE'S PROGRESS DEPICTED.

Chicago, Illinois.
Nature's progress in a million years will be portrayed at the World's Fair this summer.

Surrounded by buildings so "modernistic" that they seem to belong to the future will be a bit of the world as it appeared in its infancy.

A dome-topped structure in the grounds will contain reproductions of scenes from the antediluvian earth.

The place will be populated by creatures that became extinct thousands of years ago—dinosaurs and primitive mammals.

The dinosaurs—huge lizards that died because they let time pass them by, making no response to the demands of slowly-changing environment—will hiss, growl, roar—or whatever dinosaurs did when they wanted to register emotional tempests.

Among the lizards reproduced will be brontosaurus, the gargantuan of its day, a slow-thinking beast, in size and shape like a mobile steam shovel.

The first mammals will be presented—a giant gorilla, a huge ground sloth waddling from an asphalt pit, a hairy mammoth and a sabre-toothed tiger, which paleontologists term one of the most-perfect killing machines ever devised by nature.

Next, the visitor will see the first faint glimmers of civilization's dawn. Cave men in family groups will show a mode of life as it existed before written history.

From there, the exposition guest can pick up the thread of progress many thousands of years later and trace it during the past century as presented on the fair grounds.—Reuter.

OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

March 2.

The Duke and Duchess of York are to visit Longleat in May as the guests of the Marquis of Bath. Longleat takes a high position among the stately homes of England. It has remained in the family of the present holder since it was built—an undertaking of twelve years—by Sir John Thynne, who laid its foundation in 1667.

The turreted house is approached by a long drive through the richly wooded slope that gives on to the home park, and near the entrance to the house may be seen Heaven's Gate, a spot that commands one of the fairest prospects in Southern England.

The gardens, which were originally laid out in formal Dutch style, were transformed and beautified by "Capability" Brown in the time of the first marquess.

Gene Tunney's Book.

It was inevitable that Gene Tunney would write a book sometime or other, and in "A Man Must Fight," published recently, he gives a simple, rousing account of his ring career. The book was not "ghost" written.

Tunney certainly has a style admirably suited to his purpose, and it will please the numerous pastas and masters of literature with whom he has conversed from time to time.

Mr. Bernard Shaw, who has written a long letter to him about the book, certainly approves.

A curious thing happened to Tunney at the outset of his career. He received an injury to his left elbow which caused the arm to shrink until it was half the size of his right. A German doctor cured him, and he went on to carry off the light heavy-weight championship of the American Expeditionary Force.

A Royal Painter.

Lady Patricia Ramsay was one of the exhibitors at the show of flower paintings recently on view at the Lefevre Galleries.

Lady Patricia has many interests, but painting is her favourite hobby. Her skill, especially in flower painting, has been greatly admired by many who have seen her work.

Her canvas at Lefevre's Galleries presents a patch of daffodils in a garden scene, and the flowers have attracted much attention, because of their remarkable "aliveness."

Mr. Kirkwood Angry.

A subject which promises a dull discussion in the Commons often produces a good laugh. Such was the case when Mr. "Boh" Boothby asked the Government to introduce a quota system for oats.

Mr. Perkins asked if the House was not aware that nobody eats oats except Scotchmen and asses. This annoyed Mr. Kirkwood, who raised a louder laugh by jumping to his feet, and, pointing a trembling finger at Mr. Perkins, cried, "Yes, and there is one of the asses."

Among the unusually large number of peers in the House of Lords recently there were two faces which have ceased to be familiar. The first was Lord Kilsant, the tallest peer of the realm, who came to take the oath.

It was his first appearance in the Lords since the National Government came into power, and, after taking the oath and receiving a warm handshake from the Lord Chancellor, he took his seat behind the Archbishop's of Canterbury.

The other was Lord Grey of Fallodon, who came to hear the debate on Lord Buckmaster's bill, which is designed to protect British wild birds from captivity.

Lord Grey is a great bird lover, and has written a number of books on natural history. He followed closely the debate from the Liberal benches, but disappointed the House by not speaking himself.

Lord Curzon's Father-in-law.

The name of the late Lord Curzon's father-in-law, Mr. Levi Z. Leiter, is to come into prominence again.

Quite unknown to collectors, this very shrewd capitalist, who began his career as a clerk in a country general store, contrived to amass a number of very important letters by Washington, and other papers throwing a new light on early American diplomatic history.

This Leiter collection which was sold in New York on February 15-16, contained the "Hartley Papers" connected with the definitive treaty of peace and a projected treaty of commerce between Great Britain and the United States, between April 18, 1783, and January 16, 1786.

National Anthem's Tempo.

At the close of the ceremony at the County Hall recently, when the new wing was opened, there was noticeable an interest on the part of those present as to whether the string band of the Scots Guards would play the National Anthem according to the rearrangement.

The band did, of course. And it was the universal verdict that the Anthem as played at the slower tempo now prescribed gains in impressiveness.

The conductor, Lt. H. E. Dowell said that since 1923 he had been observing the tempo laid down in the new Army Order.

That year, during a Royal visit to Aldershot, the band of the Cameronians, which he was then conducting, played the National Anthem in this style, and the King sent and congratulated him.

Rapid Rise To Stardom.

The filming of "Bitter-Sweet," the Coward-Cochran operette, is to be started at the British and Dominions Studios almost immediately.

It is little more than two years since Miss Anna Neagle was plucked from the comparative obscurity of the chorus to play leading lady to Mr. Jack Buchanan. Though her voice was tiny it was pleasing and true.

Jack Buchanan coached and encouraged and Miss Neagle worked unceasingly to increase her vocal volume—to such good purpose that "J. B." put her into his next talking picture. And now she is to play Sari Linden in "Bitter-Sweet."

An Enacting Role.

That is a rapid rise to the brighter places in stardom, for the role created by Miss Peggy Wood and carried on by Miss Evelyn Laye is an enacting one.

The fact that Mr. Cochran has released Miss Ivy St. Heller from a provincial tour to play her original role for the same picture should ensure a strong combination on the woman side of the cast.

Sir Charles Peers.

Nowhere has the action of the Royal Institute of British Architects in submitting to the King the name of Sir Charles Reed Peers as a suitable recipient for the Royal Gold Medal for 1933 given greater satisfaction than in the Civil Service.

For the past twenty years Sir Charles has been the Chief Inspector of Ancient Monuments and Historic Buildings at the Office of Works.

An error in the original announcement made it appear that he was a member of the Royal Commission on Historic Monuments for one year, only, in 1921.

As a matter of fact, that was the year of his appointment to the Commission on which he is still serving with great distinction.

Lady Hallsam's Misfortune.

It was learned recently that Lady Hallsam, the popular wife of the Secretary for War, has sustained a broken arm as a result of a fall in their home in Sussex. Lady Hallsam slipped upon a polished floor on entering the house after working in her garden in rubber shoes.

Her amiable disposition, allied with plenty of real ability, made her, a very real asset as an "unofficial delegate" to the Empire Conference in Ottawa, whither she accompanied her husband last summer. Many are the political paths which may be rendered smoother by a woman's tact.

The Principle Of Right Dealing Mad Chase For Wealth And Power

SHIPWRECK OF SOULS

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

THE last of the series of articles on the Characters of the Cross.

The crisis of our Lord's Passion culminated, when to the people was offered by Pilate the choice, "whom will ye that I release unto you, Barabbas or Jesus who is called Christ?"

We can imagine the intense anxiety of the Roman Governor as he put that question to the crowd. Had they not only a few days ago welcomed this very Man as He came riding into the city?

It was an anxious moment for the Chief Priest and Elders, for the Disciples who were mingling with the crowd, looking on Him whom they had deserted in the hour of His need.

It was one of the supreme moments in the world's history. Upon the answer there was hanging the fate of Him Who was the Son of God.

There was a moment's pause, then ringing from the throats of the mob there came the answer, "Away with Him. Let Him be crucified."

We do not know much about Barabbas, beyond the fact that he was a notorious prisoner, who had been guilty of insurrection, and had committed murder. He was a bandit and a robber, noted and feared. Now he was safely lodged in prison. His career was checked. Peaceful citizens could now breathe more freely and dwell in safety. Surely there could be no question as to whom they would choose.

Who was this Jesus? Only a few years before there had burst upon the people of Judea and Galilee a new teacher from Nazareth. It was true that he had received no regular training, that he lacked the support of the religious leaders. Still, His teaching attracted thousands. His words had comforted many broken hearts. His parables had opened new meanings in life. He had healed the sick, and cleansed the lepers, made the lame to walk, and the blind to see. He had walked upon the waves, with five loaves and two small fishes he had fed 5,000 people. His whole life had been one of tenderness and mercy. He had devoted all His powers to the welfare of the common people.

The People's Choice. This then was their choice. One who had brought terror into the hearts of men or One Who had brought life and hope. They made their choice, and like Pilate and Herod, in making it they sealed their destiny. They chose the man of the sword, and by the sword, a few years later they paid the price. Perhaps we shudder at what poor we have given bread, to the price. Perhaps we shudder at what poor we have given bread, to the price. Perhaps we shudder at what poor we have given bread, to the price.

The choice men make is representative of their wishes, a revelation of their desires, a key to their innermost hearts. We have certain defined standards for human conduct, by which we measure the actions of others, and when they fall to come up to that standard, we are ready to accuse and blame.

But how is it that when we apply the same standards to ourselves, we fail to see the same inability to rise to the plane which we expect from others? We excuse ourselves, and say it was an exceptional case. The very fact that we have a choice implies selection. When we consider the case of Barabbas, the unexpectedness disappears when we think of the influences which determine choice.

It was the custom of the Government to release at the Passover any prisoner the people might demand. It happened every year. When, therefore, in this particular year the people were offered the usual choice, they would exercise their right in the same way as in previous years. How were they to know that this particular one was so momentous? Would they not be governed on this occasion by the motives that had ruled them in the past? Would not the party leaders and managers—the Chief Priest and Elders—determine how they should choose, as they had always done?

Election Comparison. Take any Election. The political issues are before us. Do people always consider the paramount interests of their Country or city, and vote always according to fixed conviction? Do they place principle before party, patriotism before partisanship, country before individuals?

Was it then so important to the mob before the Roman Governor, whom they chose? Why should they suddenly differ from their rulers, and differently?

They would do as they had always done—exactly as they were told.

We have been in the same situation before, perhaps frequently, perhaps regularly, why should one single action be more important than another right dealing is a habit gained from fixed principles, in little as well as in bigger things. The crisis comes and we do not know it, but our action will be determined, not by the importance of the question, but by the general habit of the years that are passed. So it was in this case. They decided with their eyes open, with perfect knowledge of the characters of the individuals concerned. We say how weak?—If we had been there we should have acted differently? We would have resisted the influences at work, and stood on our own legs no matter what it might cost. Our sense of justice would have led us to stand by the one we knew to be innocent.

Would it? Are there no mobs to-day? Do not riots, injustice, and persecution still continue? In our lives, in the world, in business, in ambitions, in the mad chase for wealth, and influence and power—in the hot pursuit of men to gratify their desires and appetites, do we not hear the question—Barabbas or Christ?

Truth Or Falsehood.

We are confronted again and again with the choice of truth or falsehood, sacrifice or indulgence, justice or injustice. What is life to-day for many but the complete shipwreck of their souls the absolute denial of Christ?

Let us ask ourselves how much joy it gives to follow in His Life of sacrifice and surrender. To what poor we have given bread, to what poor we have given bread, to what poor we have given bread.

The true reply we give to these questions will decide whether if we had been in the mob at the Passover, we would have stood by the innocent Christ or shouted to condemn Him.

Put to the test now, even as then, the shouts of the multitude to-day, even as then, is the same, just as vehement as cruel and as calous—Not this man but Barabbas!

RUSSIAN WOMEN AS WHITE SLAVES.

Sorry Plight Of Many Refugees.

COMMISSION'S REPORT.

(By HEDE STAUL.)

The Report of the Commission of Enquiry into the Traffic in Women and Children in the Far East has recently been published by the League of Nations (Allen and Unwin, price 16s. 6d.). It is a large volume of over five hundred pages and is packed with stories of human pathos and tragedy.

Some of the most tragic of the stories told in the Report concern the fate of Russian refugees in Manchuria. Many fall victims almost as soon as they have crossed the border from the Soviet Union into Manchuria. The Report describes how a group of refugees, mostly ignorant peasants, crosses the Russo-Manchurian border at some unguarded place in the steppe.

Once across the border their aim is to reach those parts of Manchuria where they would find people who speak their language and might be able to employ them as labourers. So they continue their way towards the Chinese Eastern Railway Line, about 2,000 kilometres to the South. Having usually little or no money they are forced to sell their way.

They put up at Chinese inns or are given shelter by Chinese peasants. Sometimes they find themselves stranded in this way in a remote Chinese village and as the landlord will not let the whole family depart without payment, the men usually depart in the hope of being able to earn money to send to their women folk. After a time, if the men do not return, the landlord usually tries to make money out of the women.

Once a woman is considered as invested capital, the Report says, "the way to the village brothel will not be long for a defenceless woman of foreign race, unable to speak the language of the land, probably unable to write a letter in her own language, too weary and broken to protest."

Whilst the Commission was unable to ascertain the number of such victims they were assured by reliable witnesses who had had opportunity to travel great distances overland in North Manchuria, that there were such Russian prostitutes in most of the villages through which they passed.

From Harbin and the other cities of Manchuria where there are great numbers of Russian refugees, many of whom are of good family, there is a considerable traffic with the great Chinese cities of the north. Russian women, we are told, are recruited for "every form of accidental prostitution, from the lowest, the brothel, to the most discreet, in which it is veiled by such occupations as cabaret, artistic, restaurant waiter, professional dancing partner or manicurist."

SPRING CONCERT AT PENINSULA.

Famous Violinist To Play Numbers.

A concert will be held at the Peninsula Hotel on Sunday, April 2, by the famous violinist, Prof. N. A. Tonoff, M.A., with participation of a local tenor, Mr. Li Chor-chi and the well-known pianist, Prof. S. MacLennan, M.A. Prof. N. A. Tonoff is a newcomer to Hong Kong, but has already made a name through his debut in a radio-broadcast, rendering several pieces with unusually fine execution.

Mr. Li Chor-chi, a fine tenor, and Prof. S. MacLennan, who has appeared at numerous concerts in Hong Kong, are sharing the "Spring Concert."

The performance is going to be one of outstanding merit.

POLICE CURE HICCUGHS

Portland, Oregon. Police here believe they have discovered a new "cure" for hiccoughs. A man rushed into the station and gave a hiccough-punctuated report that his car had been stolen. He also said he had hiccoughed continuously for two days. A few moments later, police told him that his car had been recovered and the four thieves jailed. The hiccoughs ceased immediately.—Reuter.

DRAMATIC RESCUE BY "CARLISLE"

Record Life-Saving Dash From Cruiser.

FIVE PEOPLE SAVED

Simonstown. A record life-saving dash by one of the boats of H.M.S. Carlisle in the evening was responsible for the saving of five lives. A canoe containing three women, who could not swim, a man and a young boy capsized in Simon's Bay. Their screams for help were heard ashore and several boats put off to the rescue.

The accident had also been observed from the bridge of the Carlisle which was on its way out of the bay for night firing. Within one minute a boat was lowered and it dashed away to the rescue. The boat arrived in the nick of time, all three women being almost unconscious. They were only kept hanging on to the boat by the desperate efforts of the male member of the party.

The Carlisle's boat transferred the five people to the other boats which arrived on the scene and they were brought in to the town pier where artificial respiration was successfully applied to all three women. It took over an hour to bring the women round.—Reuter.

FARM HOLDING AS PENSIONS.

Santiago Plan For Ex-Service Men.

Santiago. Grants of farms and land are to be given to army and naval officers dismissed in accordance with the government's economy programme, in place of service pensions. The size of the farm lands presented will vary in accordance with the rank of the officer.

The government at present has hopes of turning on its hands due to debt default, many farmers who have been unable to pay their taxes having signed over their deeds to the state.

It is thought that many civilians, also, will object to have their pensions paid in this way rather than in a currency which is already depreciated and which may lose more of its value in future.

One of the attractions of the agricultural minister's scheme is that those taking their pensions in this form will be exempt from land and farming property taxation during their lifetime.—Reuter.

IDEAL HOME FOR NEXT WAR.

Underground Week-End Bungalows.

Prague. An underground week-end bungalow may be a most envied possession in a few years' time, declares a man here who is trying to sell a site for a family house with an underground entrance.

"War is bound to come sooner or later," he says. "It will be an aerial war. Airmen are guided by rivers and railways, so keep away from them."

He has got a "sales-compelling" advertisement that says:

"Have yourselves from aerial attacks by building a family house with an underground entrance. The building plot is neither directly near a river nor a railway, but is in a lovely, well-forested neighbourhood, protected in the north by a valley. 21 miles from Prague. Motor-bus connection."—Reuter.

C.M.C. REGULATION MODIFICATION.

Foreign Marks On Goods Accepted.

Some weeks ago the Chinese Maritime Customs notified that from August 1 all goods imported into China must be marked in Chinese characters with the name of the country of original manufacture.

The Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce learns from a trustworthy source that it is proposed to modify this regulation. Marks in either English, French or Chinese will be accepted.

An extensive official list has just been issued by the Customs detailing whereabouts on various types of goods the marks of origin are to be shown.

Magnified Microbes In "Chamber Of Horrors."

SMALL CELLS REVEALED

Chicago. Broddingnag, the land where men were as tall as church steeples will have a biological counterpart in Chicago this summer. It will be done by magnifying microbes.

A room in the hall of science will fulfill those nightmares wherein fantastic creatures, ugly, misshapen, and with teeth like piano keyboards, lumber after you. Dr. Jay Pearson, in charge of the biological exhibits at the World's Fair has announced the completion of arrangements for staging motion pictures of the protozoa, the almost invisible single-celled animals that live all around us.

In charge of the performances will be Dr. George Roemmert, one-time student of the famous German biologist, Dr. Richard Hertwig, and now a resident of New York. Dr. Roemmert has perfected a method for projecting on a screen or wall these tiny forms of life that pulse in a drop of water from a flower vase, a stagnant pond, or the scrapings from green coated stone.

Take an imaginary walk through the "protozoarium," the chamber of horrors and wonders as explained by Dr. Pearson.

On the four walls of the "protozoarium" moving pictures show drops of water and grains of dirt magnified thousand of times in which grotesque, multiformed creatures move. They range from the simplest unicellular kinds through cell colonies up to small crustaceans, minute cousins of the dinner table lobster.

The spectator obtains a clear conception of the cell, unit of all living matter, by seeing it as an entity, realises how nature carries her blending of colours and working of designs to fractions, welding brushes and trowels infinitesimal in size.—Reuter.

STRANGE SEQUEL TO GOLD FIND.

Newspaper Report Leads To Finding Relatives.

Berth. There has been a remarkable sequel to the report made by Mr. Joe Wilson, a Kalgoolie contractor, in October last, that while driving along a street he picked up a gold slug in a tyre of his car.

Recently Mr. Wilson received an extract from a paper in Massachusetts, U.S.A., reporting the incident. It was sent to him by a woman, who asked if he were related to three brothers of her father, who went to Australia.

From particulars the woman supplied, Mr. Wilson is satisfied that he has established a link with long lost relations.

In his travels around the world, the story of the slug underwent many changes. In the Massachusetts report its value rose about 2,000 per cent.—Reuter.

BRIDGE AND RUMBA FOR WORKLESS.

Social Training Course In America.

Norwood, Massachusetts. This town's unemployed may face hunger and cold, but they will be accomplished socially.

The 300 jobless were offered free instruction by the local recreation committee. Courses in gardening, sewing, cooking, and the like, have been supplemented by the Rumba and the exacting science of contract dancing. 134 unemployed men and women asked to be taught modern dancing; 91 elected to regain their youthful figures by reducing exercises; and 42 chose to be instructed when to lead trumps.

A professional dancing instructor has been engaged to teach the victims of the depression the latest modern steps.—Reuter.

Inflatable rubber bags to be strapped to the forearms have been invented to help bathers and inexperienced swimmers keep afloat in water.

German cheese manufacturers are advertising their product by having two men roll a huge sample throughout the country like a road roller.

An automobile that resembles a dirigible balloon and that is driven by an aerial propeller has been built in Iowa for advertising purposes.

Due to a restriction of production Japan manufactured more than 5,713,000 pounds of rayon in August, a record output for a single month.

In a new duplicating machine the stencil and ink pad are suspended on springs, copies being produced by running a metal roller over the stencil to imitate the action of a cylinder machine.

A new Brunswick firm dealing in sea foods has succeeded in transporting live lobsters in the coldest weather by using a motor truck the interior of which is heated from the engine exhaust.

The world's first ferryboat supplied with power from an overhead trolley wire is being used to carry automobiles across a California river at about half the cost of a gasoline powered craft.

A French aeronautical engineer has equipped a dirigible balloon with propellers that can be turned in any direction to enable it to land or leave the ground without the aid of a ground crew.

To reduce the glare of approaching headlights an automobile windshield has been invented that is composed of two sheets of glass, between which a driver can inject a flood of coloured liquid.

Of German invention is a noiseless typewriter that is covered with glass on a specially built desk, lengthened keys protruding through slots and a foot pedal lifting the cover when necessary.

An eye testing chart designed by a New York optometrist uses specimens of newspaper type, a section from a telephone directory, a few bars of music and the corners of a hand of playing cards.

NEW "TEST" CRICKETERS IN SYDNEY

Lord Howe Island Team On Tour.

VERSATILE ELEVEN.

Sydney. One expects to find cricket played in any large British community. It is part of the scheme of things. One looks for it in outback towns. Even on ocean liners they play it. But who would expect a tiny Pacific Island, seven miles long by about one mile wide, to produce a full-sized cricket team (with reserves) and send it on a tour?

That is what Lord Howe Island has done. A team from the island played against internationalists at the Sydney Cricket Ground, recently. What would any young cricketer in the suburbs of Sydney have given to play on the Cricket Ground, to face the bowling of Tommy Andrews, or to have bowled against Fingleton? To do these things one must be something of a champion. Or live on Lord Howe Island.

Nor do the Lord Howe Islanders specialise in cricket. If they did, there would be few players left for bowls and tennis—and Lord Howe has its bowlers and its tennis players. So it is that, from the 18 cricketers who are now in Sydney, a couple of quite good bowls rinks could be chosen, as well as seven or eight tennis players.

Even with all their keenness, there are not enough grown-up cricketers "to go round." So they co-opt the children. Friday is always set apart for cricket, and two elevens are always available. A judicious mixing of children and adults makes for even games. The teams having been chosen, a rubber or three matches is played. Then there is a re-shuffle, fresh teams are chosen, and a new rubber commenced.

Pacific "Test Matches."

This is the first time a team has visited Sydney, though several "test matches" have been played against Norfolk Island—a mere 480 miles on the other side of Lord Howe. Sydney and Norfolk Island are the nearest neighbours or Lord Howe. It is the proud boast of the Lord Howe Islanders that though their population is only 130, and that of Norfolk Island about 1,000, they have won nearly every match they have played against their insular rivals.

Not only are they keen sportsmen in the field. They are good bridge players. The stakes, a stranger would imagine, are high—1-a 100 points. It is quite common to hear one of the Islanders say "I'm £2-10-down for a month." But if the stranger in-Berlin.

A Jewish Museum, with a remarkable collection of exhibits representing nearly 4,000 years of Jewish history, has been opened here.

The collection includes paintings, works of plastic art, silver and gold cut vessels, tapestries, and an archaeological collection from Palestine. The latter is devoted especially to clay and glassware, but it also contains many beautiful examples of Grecian, Roman and Jewish ornaments.

One interesting exhibit is a Renaissance rug, which King Frederick William I, the "soldier king" and father of Frederick the Great, presented to the first Jewish Synagogue in Berlin in 1718 as a Thorah curtain.—Reuter.

The CALL of the OPEN ROAD

HONOURS FOR A.A. SECRETARY.

Pioneer Of Empire Motoring.

SIR STENSON COOKE KNIGHTED.

London. Twenty eight years ago a disconsolate young man stood near the Piccadilly end of Shaftesbury Avenue, at the close of a wearisome day of looking for a job. He was waiting for the Highbury horse-drawn bus and home to a young wife who assuredly would say: "Never mind dear, better luck to-morrow."

Then Fate took a hand. The disconsolate young man received a brain-wave from the Unseen. There was a decent fellow across the road to whom he owed a couple of pounds. Ye Gods! Why remember that now? But wait. Ought he not to run over and explain why the debt had not been settled—that it surely would be wiped off?

In such devious ways are men made and unmade. The D.Y.M. made the courageous choice. He called; heard the decent fellow waive aside the matter of the small debt and say that there was a job of sorts going—a secretaryship of some motoring thing formed to fight somebody or other.

That Highbury young man of 1905 has just been knighted by the King. He is Sir Stenson Cooke, first and only Secretary of the Automobile Association.

Behind the scenes he has been the presiding genius which has caused this small handful of motoring enthusiasts to become the greatest motoring organisation in the world with a membership of close on half a million.

Sir Stenson Cooke is the world's best-known secretary. His organising skill has inspired the birth and growth of scores of allied overseas organisations from Shanghai and Ceylon to North America.

As a direct result of his world tours the membership of allied Empire motoring organisations now exceeds 200,000. Indeed, organised motoring throughout the Empire owes much of its inspiration to the pioneer work of Sir Stenson Cooke and the A.A.

World-wide, these overseas organisations are in constant touch with A.A. Headquarters, seeking guidance from the deep stores of experience at Fanum House. It is a boast that no request for help from any quarter has never been refused.

One of the secrets of Sir Stenson Cooke's success is his unflinching ability to make loyal friends. His is a genius for getting on with the other fellow.

The New Year found further honours bestowed. From France came news that he had been created a Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur. A similar honour has been conferred from Austria.

In addition, Sir Stenson Cooke's invaluable work in the field of international touring has been recognised by the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme in electing him a Vice-President. This Alliance is the world's most powerful group of touring associations and clubs with an aggregate membership of over 7,000,000.

Sir Stenson Cooke has the bump of versatility developed to a marked degree. He represented Great Britain in the Fells Contest at the Olympiad, Stockholm, in 1912 and he was Amateur Fells champion of Britain in 1923.

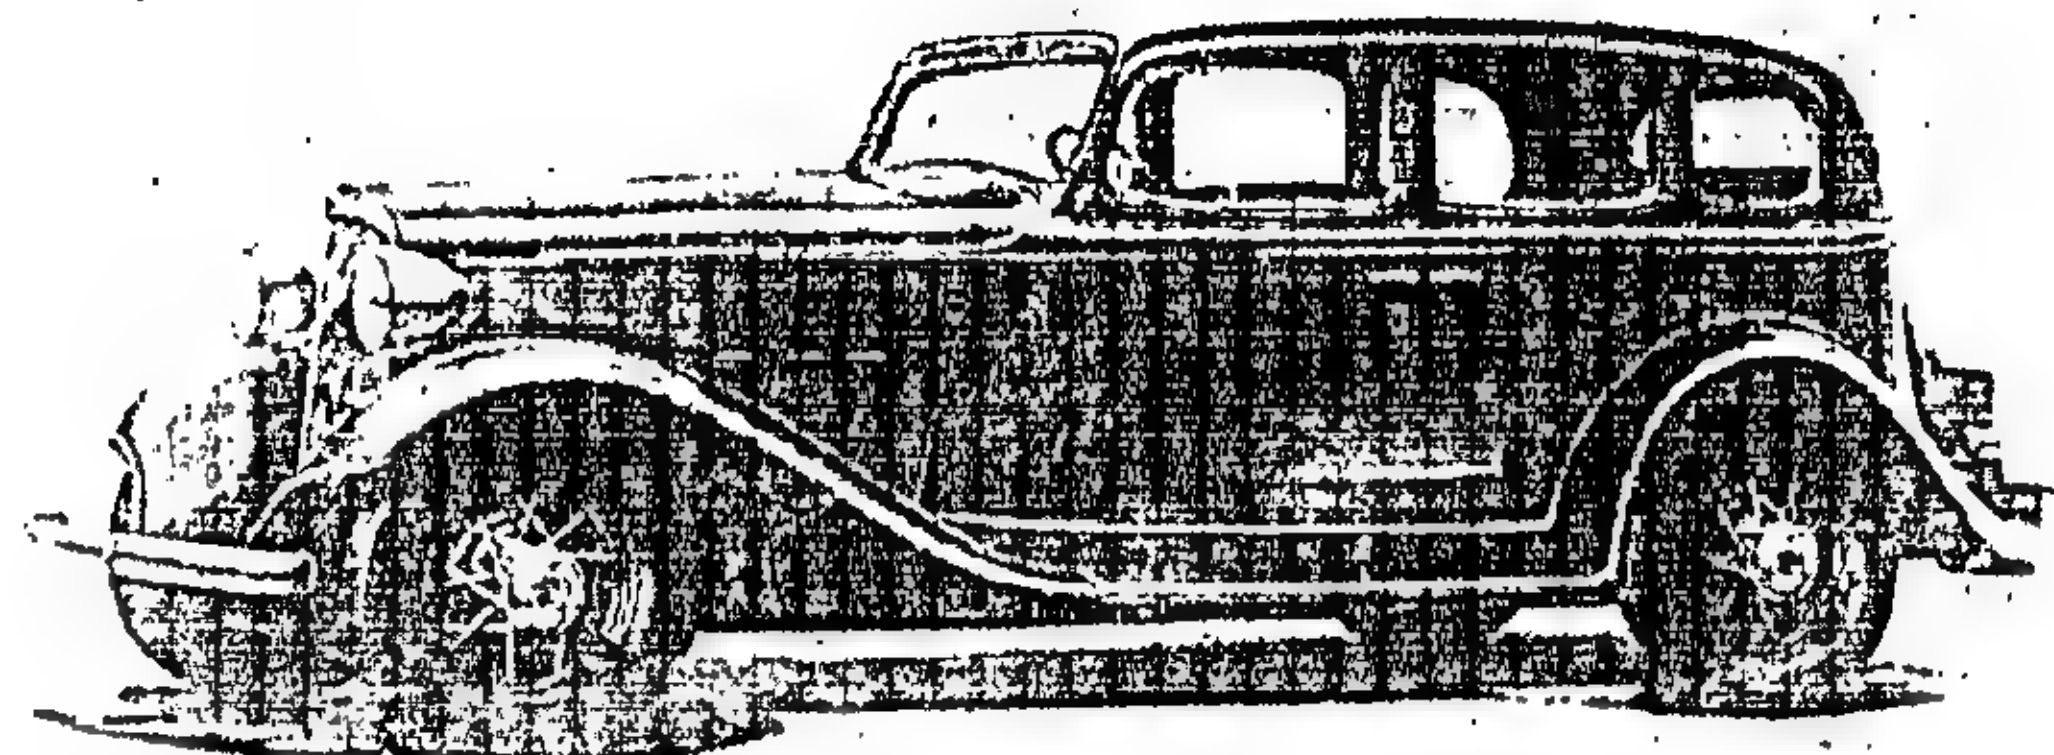

He is an author also with an undeniable gift for writing. His book "This Motoring," published a couple of years ago, is now running through its eleventh edition.

No self-respecting motorist ought to plod ignorance of this fascinating story.—Router.

Cars Are Damaged By British Roads

Attention Of Authorities Called By Owners

ACCIDENT OR NEGLIGENCE

London, Oct. 1. MANY Morris car owners must have had cause to complain from time to time of damage done to their cars as a result of the bad condition of the roads they have had to travel upon. The slackness of the responsible highway authority for their proper upkeep, the negligence of their workmen in failing to remove heaps of road-mending material or tools from the road after they have finished their work, or the absence of proper and sufficient warning lights upon such obstacles at night may have been the primary cause, writes H. A. Sharman in "The Morris Owner."

When such damage is sustained, the unfortunate driver may well consider his position thus: I pay the highway authority a large sum every year to keep the roads in good condition. If they fail to carry out their duty to me to the extent of causing serious damage to my car, can I claim from them the loss they have occasioned?

Sins of Omission.

In the first place, the damage done to my car may arise as a result of one or two different legal wrongs committed by the highway authority whose duty it is to look after the road in question. It may be the result of a certain kind of negligence known as non-feasance, which, in the case of a road, would be the omission by the people responsible for its upkeep to do any repairs to the road at all; whether the act complained of is one of non-feasance being a question of fact to be decided on the particular circumstances of each individual case. In these cases the motorist can claim no compensation for the loss he has sustained, his only remedy being to indict the inhabitants of the parish, or whoever should keep the road in good condition, and compel them to repair it efficiently. Since, however, in most cases the motorist desires compensation only, he will not feel inclined to expend his money, time and energy thus, and so for all practical purposes he has no effective remedy at all.

—Or Commission.

The other kind of negligence, for which the car owner is able to claim compensation for the damage he has sustained, is known as misfeasance. This is an act of some act of commission done by wrong-doing. Misfeasance arises where the damage is the result of some act of commission done by the people responsible for the repair of the road, as opposed to an act of omission in cases of non-feasance; and when the damage is the result of an act of commission on the part of the responsible authority or their employees, the injured party can sue them for the loss he has sustained.

To take a decided case on the subject is the best method of finding out what the Courts consider an act of non-feasance. In a case heard in 1900, the plaintiff was driving along a road in the rural district of Bingham on the night of February 16. Alongside the road was an old ditch without any fence or other protection for the benefit of users of the road. There were heavy floods in the district and the ditch was full and the road flooded. The plaintiff drove into this ditch and was drowned. The question to be decided was whether or not his representatives could claim compensation from the highway authority.

Accident or Negligence. A collateral question was whether the death of the driver was traceable to the act of misfeasance, and here the Court decided that it was. In all cases this question must, of course, be answered on the facts of the particular case.

With regard to non-feasance, an accident as the result of this kind of negligence might arise where the road had been allowed to get into a very bad condition and badly "pot-holed," and a car was damaged by running into one of these pot-holes. In such a case the owner of the car would have no right to claim damages for his loss from the authority responsible for the repair of the road. The damage is the result of an omission on the part of the highway authority, not an act of commission.

Accidents resulting from a collision with some unprotected road repairing operations, such as a workman's barrow, or a collection of tools, or a heap of stones, next claim attention, and in these cases, although it is an act of omission on the part of the authority's servants to leave these objects unprotected, it is really their presence on the highway which is the cause of the accident, and this is an act of commission. Therefore, if damage results from a collision with any unprotected road repairing operations, the motorist can usually make a successful claim for any loss he has sustained.

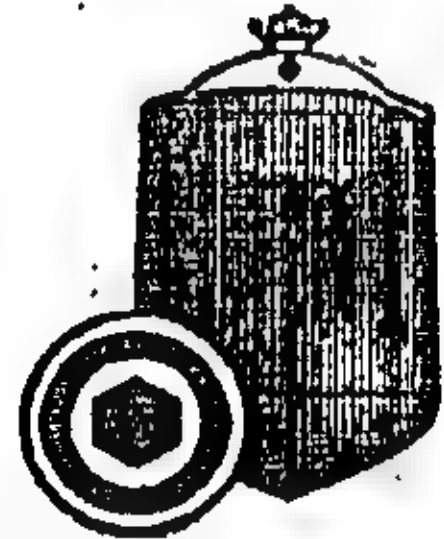

LINCOLN CAR SALES INCREASE.

Detroit, Mich. Retail sales of Lincoln motor cars in November, 1932 were 27.04 per cent. greater than in the corresponding month a year ago, the Lincoln Motor Company announced recently.

November was the third consecutive month in which Lincoln retail sales exceeded those for the same month last year.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"STYLE," as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more.

Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring"—a Packard characteristic for a third of a century.

So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved—like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower—it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

When Is A Man In Charge Of A Car?

Puzzle For Home Magistrate.

If a motorist returns to his car to fetch something from it, without any intention of driving, can he be said to be in charge of the car?

This question was raised at Bow Street recently when Geoffrey Jupe, aged 26, a demonstrator on holiday from Ireland, staying at an hotel at Teddington, Middlesex, was charged with being under the influence of drink while in charge of a car.

He was fined £10, ordered to pay £2 2s. costs, and disqualified from holding a licence for 12 months.

Police-constable Walter Smith said that late last night Jupe left a public-house in Gray's Inn-Road with two men, walked around for ten minutes, and then staggered to a motorcar. He had just opened the door when the officer stopped him. He admitted that he was the owner of the car, and, asked what he intended to do, replied, "Drive it home, of course."

Jupe, on oath, denied that he was under the influence of drink. He said he had left his wife at a dance-hall, and went to his car for her coat, intending to take it to Paris. There are now more than 1,500,000 motor cars in France.

Latest statistics show that in the budgetary year 1931-32, no less than 2,203,136 motor vehicles paid taxes, as compared with 1,989,648 the previous year. This total includes:

1,251,538 touring cars,
437,864 lorries and delivery cars,
438,447 motorcycles,
21,650 cyclecars,
4,034 motorboats.

For taxation purposes, a motorboat is a motor car.

In 1922 there were only 242,358 touring cars, and 120,794 lorries.—Reuter.

NAVY HALL'S WIN PAYS OUT $185

A good start was witnessed in the Starling Stakes which attracted nine starters. Hey Tor (Mr. Pan), Jack O'Lantern (Mr. Needa), White Butterfly (Mr. Harman) and Iron Grey (Mr. da Rosa) drawing away early in the race. Flying Boy (Mr. Frost) was lying fifth until the Rock was reached, where Hey Tor, the favourite, and Jack O'Lantern fell out of the race.

Coming into the straight Mr. Frost brought his mount through to beat Mr. da Rosa, on Iron Grey, by a length to pay $111.10 for a win, the second highest of the afternoon, and $29.20 for a place. Mr. Harman was only beaten out of second place by a neck, but White Butterfly paid $39.20 for a place.

The Bias Bay Handicap provided further upsets. Christmas Belle, a warm favourite, being kept out of a place.

Mr. Pan rode a great finish on Partnership to beat Philiterer (Mr. Butler) by a neck, while Helvellyn (Mr. Frost) was only a head behind the second pony in one of the most thrilling finishes of the afternoon.

Partnership, second favourite, paid $24.80 for a win.

Per se was left by six lengths in the Tolo Plate when the tapes flew up for the 1 1/4 mile race which attracted eight starters, but so well was he ridden by the champion jockey that he came in second, only a length separating him from Poker Face (Mr. Heard) at the winning post.

Poker Face led all the way round, and it was as well that Mr. "Johnny" Heard set such a spanking pace for King's Company looking for a dangerous contender. By the time the Rock was reached Per se was up with the leaders, but this early effort robbed Mr. Frost of a sensational win.

Mr. da Rosa's third place on the Dynasty entry paid $14.70.

Per se's last appearance at the Valley resulted in the breaking of the starting gate and a long wait while the riders on pony accompanied The Cavalier once round the track. That time, however, he secured second place. He was second favourite to Poker Face yesterday.

NAVY HALL'S WIN.

There were seven starters for the Hongkong Bay Handicap over six furlongs. Tillicum (Mr. Butler) took a slight lead from a good start with Navy Hall and Valorous, the favourite, just behind. The ponies bunched together, and, coming into the straight, it was anyone's race.

Mr. Needa came through with a great burst on Weybridge, but Mr. Soares rode a magnificent race on Navy Hall to pip the well-known Shanghai rider on the post. Navy Hall paid $185.20 for a win and $11.80 for a place thus beating Tillicum's record of $109 for a win at the Annual Meeting under Mr. "Bilby" Hill.

Valorous, the favourite, was only a short head behind Mr. Needa's mount for second place.

The Calliope Handicap witnessed yet another upset when Mermaid came through in the straight to beat Lady Peel's Lucy Gitters by five lengths. But After That, the favourite, was unplaced, Evening Star securing third place.

Mr. Frost sent But After That into an early lead, but the pony was spent by the time the straight was reached. Mr. Butler brought Mermaid through from nowhere to win by a surprisingly large margin. The pony paid $34.40 for a win and $16.20, while Lucy Gitters paid 2 to 1 odds.

The Tai Wan Handicap over a mile provided a spill and plenty of thrills. The finish was one of the best of the day, Mr. da Rosa on King Salmon and Mr. Ip Kuying on Amoy fighting out every inch of the straight in a gruelling struggle for supremacy. Neither could gain the advantage and a dead heat was the decision of the Judges.

A length behind came Orlando (Mr. Soares) and Warrington (Mr. Needa), who again fought out a thrilling finish which resulted in a second dead heat in the same race.

At the mile post Cebu appear to stumble and Mr. Pearce was unseated, falling on his face. Apart from receiving a shaking, however, he appeared to be none the worse for his fall, although his face was badly bruised.

DAVIS CUP HOLDERS ANXIOUS

LACOSTE
ON FRANCE'S
CHANCESYouth May Not Defend Davis Cup.

MERLIN AND BERNARD

BOROTRA MAY BE REQUIRED.

London March 18.
Will the Davis Cup change hands this year? It may be said that the challenge to France's hold upon this trophy is likely to be hotter than ever before and Rene Lacoste, who was one of the key men in breaking into America's long reign, has some interesting things to say about the immediate future of France.

He comes to the conclusion that France possesses no youngsters at present worthy of replacing the three Musketeers—Jean Borotra, H. Cochet and Jacques Brugnon. "The French team will have a difficult task to retain the Davis Cup in 1933," Lacoste declares, "but all hope is not lost."

According to Rene Lacoste it is probable that Jean Borotra will again be in the defending teams—and as a singles player. That is also the considered opinion of many knowledgeable folks in London. The Basque is keeping fit. He is still winning singles championships. Only recently he retained his title of French Covered Courts champion in defeating R. do Buzet by 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, the ninth time he has won the title.

"I do not wish at any cost," continues Lacoste, "to afford Borotra another opportunity of announcing his retirement. I will therefore content myself with stating that the French team of

"This team spirit should manifest in the search for a fourth Musketeer capable of playing in single. But encouragement and exhortation are not always sufficient to create a champion, and if no young player makes a definite arrival before July, the captain of the French team should again speak to the Bounding Basque of Self Sacrifice."

That allusion to Borotra's retirement refers to last year's dilemma. Lacoste came back to the game, making a determined bid to recapture his old form. He played in the French Championships and had to admit his old game could not be recovered.

Meanwhile, expecting Lacoste back in the Davis Cup team Borotra announced his definite retirement from the game. So there will be no more talk of a Lacoste come-back in 1933.

Continuing Lacoste says: "Cochet was not the man of the year in 1932. Ought we to be surprised at this when we recall the few events in which he took part between July, 1931, and July 1932? Ought we to be surprised when we make a count of the sets in which he took part in training during the same period?"

"Cochet is an innate player of lawn tennis but no man possesses such talent that he is never in need of maintaining it. I hope that his defeats, instead of discouraging him, will inspire afresh the sacred fire."

If he plays much, if he endeavours to quicken that rhythm which allowed him to paralyze Tilden, but which is too slow to meet Vines, if he sets out to meet the best opponents possible he will rapidly regain the form which will make him the man of 1933.

"We cannot say that Boussus, Merlin, and Marcel Bernard have quite fulfilled in 1932 the hopes placed in them. But we must not forget that several years (six years for a Tilden) are sometimes necessary to make a champion, and we must record with satisfaction the good performances of our 'hopes,' assure them of our confidence, and above all encourage them to practise their weak points."

The father of W. H. Weston, one of England's new Rugby forwards, played against Scotland at Blackheath in 1901.

"STEADY COMPANY"
SPARKLES WITH YOUTH,
ROMANCE AND ACTION.
EXCELLENT FIGHT SCENES
ZASU PITTS DELIGHTFULLY
FUNNY.

Packed to the brim with action — and bulging out the sides! That's "STEADY COMPANY," Universal's two-fisted romance of a fighting truck-driver and his sweetheart, featuring Norman Foster, June Clyde and Zasu Pitts. This film is refreshing in its originality. There are prize-fight scenes that are really thrilling and exciting. — scenes that are staged in the well-known Madison Square Gardens.

The story concerns a virile young truck-driver Jim who falls in love with a pretty blonde telephone operator Peggy and who immediately determines to court fame and fortune for her via the prize-fight ring. The girl thinks that her hero has been going to a night school to become a great surgeon and when he surprises her with a handful of newspaper clippings that laud him in his first prize-fight, he receives rebuke instead of enthusiasm. Nevertheless, he continues as a pugilist and finally obtains a chance to fight the champion.

His sweetheart, however, is not pleased and a quarrel ensues, resulting in a definite break. On the night of the big fight, Jim receives a terrific thrashing, though battling very gamely. Despite the quarrel, Peggy listens to the account of the fight over the radio and breaks down on hearing of the punishment Jim undergoes. The end of the film is very different to what one usually sees, and is a fitting climax to an excellent, fast-moving picture. The supporting cast includes J. Farrell MacDonald, Henry Armetta, Walter Miller and Jack Perry.

I. Four happy people! Mrs. Fairfield (Billie Burke), and Gary Meredith (Paul Cavanagh) whom she is engaged to marry, exchange congratulations with her daughter Sydney (Katharine Hepburn) and her fiancé (David Manners)... There is a Mr. Fairfield, by the way, many years a shell-shocked mental case. He does not even know that he has been divorced.

II. "Aunt Hester, father's got away!" So Sydney announces agasp. The call from the asylum comes like a bombshell into the blissfully unprepared household. He may even now be groping his way homeward with returning sanity. How to meet this catastrophe?

III. Hilary Fairfield (John BARRYMORE) comes—a "dead man" struggling back pathetically to life. At the threshold, how to tell him that as a husband he no longer existed; that his wife Margaret was joyously on the eve of marrying another... And this slim girl, so like Margaret, who was she? Her answer: "I'm afraid I'm your daughter." Yet, what was she to tell him of her mother?

IV. Meredith is frantic at the news of the return. "You have no husband! You're marrying me—you're insane!" "I'm not afraid when you're here," she sobbed. "But, he must be told." "I'll be back at 8:30. You'll be ready?" "If—I've managed."

V. Hilary Fairfield's numbed brain has at last grasped it! It is plain... he no longer has her... she no longer loves him... he is scarcely a memory... his alibi has been washed clean. "Yes, it seems fair enough... yet—oh, Meg! You promised! You promised—in sickness, in health—better or worse—you can't go back on your promise! You can't—you can't!" Something has to happen. What's the solution?

Guam Islanders Seek To Hold U.S. Rule Withdrawal Creates Prey For Foreign Power

GOOD PROGRESS IN 30 YEARS

CONSIDERED practically useless as a strategic point by American military experts, the island of Guam promises to become a minor political problem in the United States in the not distant future.

Will it be turned over to the Philippines or will the United States attempt to turn it into a Pacific paradise for tourists and continue to govern its 11,000 natives as it has done for the past three decades? These are just a few of the questions that the inhabitants of the little island are beginning to ask themselves. And, according to dispatches on the question appearing in American newspapers, they are deeply concerned over their future status.

As to placing the island under Philippine government jurisdiction, the Guam natives are definitely opposed to such a plan. They made their stand on this issue known some five years ago when the Philippines put in a request to Washington asking that they be given supervision over Guam and the right to look after the interests of the islanders.

The Guam inhabitants objected strenuously, maintaining that they were satisfied with American government. They expressed the fear that some day the United States might grant independence to the Philippines and that they, the residents of Guam, had no desire to be left without the protection of the United States.

Might Become A Resort.

As a tourist resort combined with a small naval base, it is possible that something may be done with Guam in a commercial way. As a productive island, raising copra for the world market, there is very little that can be done. While the natives are practically all farmers and are self-supporting, production for the world market is small. And to turn the place into a tourist center would require considerable money spent in publicity and even then it would be difficult to attract visitors to a place so far out of the way as Guam, no matter what the inducements might be.

Guam is an attractive spot, however, boasting tropical beauty of the type one finds in the Philippines and it is large enough, being about 30 miles long, to give the visitor value for the money he might spend. Agaña, the capital city of Guam, has about 100,000 inhabitants, has clean streets and is an attractive place and sufficiently quiet that a tourist looking for a rest and a real vacation could enjoy himself.

Farming is the chief occupation of the inhabitants but even this line of endeavour is not conducted on a large scale, the native raising a little more than enough to take care of his personal needs.

Farmer Handicapped.
The farmer in Guam will never make a real success of his calling until he abandons his present practice of living in town and going out to his farm on working days. This custom owes its origin to two causes, first to the fact that the early Spaniards made it compulsory to live in the vicinity of a church for the reason that it was much easier to collect taxes, and secondly, it was important to be near a water supply.

All through the southern half of the island, water is readily accessible, but in the northern part there are few places where water can be obtained during the dry season. The natives are deeply religious, however, and the real obstacle to better farming in Guam will be the difficulty in attending church.

If a ranch is within an hour's walk of town, its owner will spend two hours of the day on the road to and from his work. If at a greater distance, he will spend a day or two or even a whole week on his farm but will never fail to reach his village for church Sunday morning.

A good deal has been accomplished in the island under American rule, the most notable change for the better being the establishment of an educational system patterned after the school systems in the United States. Much has been achieved and the present generation is rapidly becoming westernized.

BLUFF ENCOURAGED
IN U.S.A.

"Necessity Of Life."

Seattle.
Several professors of the University of Washington have declared that it is perfectly all right for students to bluff—so long as they don't get caught.

"Everyone has to bluff sooner or later in life, and college is a good place to learn how to do it," declared the head of the English school.

The Professor of the History Department concurred in this opinion and said that he encourages his students to bluff.

"It is better to know, but when in doubt, bluff," was the advice of the savants.—Reuter.

DRIVER'S PRESENCE OF MIND

Child's Narrow Escape
From Death.

CRAWLED ON RAIL TRACK

Cape Town.

The presence of mind of an electric train driver on the suburban railways saved the life of an 18 months old native child.

The child was travelling from Simon's Town to Cape Town when the driver suddenly saw the infant climbing across the rails about 150 feet ahead.

He applied his brakes but it seemed unlikely that the train which was travelling at 45 miles an hour, would be able to pull up in time.

With wonderful manipulation of his controls, however, the driver managed to bring the train to a standstill within an inch of the child which was found caught between the rails and the cow catcher.

It was uninjured except for a small abrasion. No one knows how the child came to be on the rails, or who it belongs to, but the railway police are investigating the matter.

GOLD DEALER DOES ROARING TRADE.

Second-Hand Jewellery
Yields £50,000.

Johannesburg.
A single gold dealer in 12 days has purchased trinkets and jewellery which have yielded 7,400 ounces of pure gold. This amount of gold, which is equivalent to the monthly output of a small gold mine, has passed across the counter. Its value is about £50,000.

Since that gold was melted down, a further 2,000 ounces of old gold have been purchased by this jeweller.—Reuter.

JAPAN DENIES FERMAN CLAIM TO MANDATES

mandate from the League, said the statement.
Japan has announced the intention of retaining the mandated islands—the Marshalls, Carolines, Peleus and Marianas, which lie to the east of the Philippines—after her withdrawal from the League over the Sino-Japanese conflict.
The Japanese position is that the islands, of little commercial value but of great military strategic importance, were awarded to Japan by the Supreme Allied Council before the League came into the world conflict on the side of the allies—U.P. and A.P.

EMPRESS OF JAPAN'S NEW RECORD.

The "Empress of Japan" the largest and fastest liner on the Pacific, again lowered her record between Honolulu and Victoria last month by 7 hours and 47 minutes, making a record crossing in 4 days,
8 hours and 3 minutes.

DRASTIC NAZI PERSECUTION OF GERMAN JEWS.

Many people consider the whole campaign not so much as an act of defence against foreign "atrocity" propaganda as an attempt to appease disappointed Nazi extremists who have been incited to anti-Semitism for years.
It is doubted, however, whether the policy of appeasement will be successful. Jewish circles fear that once the boycott is started Nazi leaders will not be able to hold their followers in check to-morrow evening.
Herr Goebbels' speech has not allayed this anxiety.
PLACARDS POSTED.
Meanwhile preparations for the boycott are continuing, and in order that foreigners may see the seriousness of the position, placards in ungrammatical English proclaiming: "Germans defend yourself against Jewish atrocity propaganda" will be posted.—Router.
